

Privacy Policy

Each of the wikis hosted on this EPA site provides a collaborative environment for sharing insights on a particular topic with EPA employees and registered external partners. Each wiki will be monitored and maintained by designated EPA staff.

Content on the wiki has the potential to be considered, after appropriate reviews, for posting to EPA's public Web site or the EPA intranet.

This information may be shared with appropriate agencies for law enforcement purposes; to congressional offices in response to inquiries from the congressional office on your behalf; and to the Department of Justice or in a judicial or administrative proceeding if EPA determines that the litigation will affect the Agency and the use of the information is relevant and necessary to the litigation.

Are there requirements for participating on these Wikis?

Participating on these sites is voluntary. There are no requirements for an individual to register, or, once registered, to use or participate on this site. However, this site benefits from the broader community's ability to create, edit, and share knowledge, as well as collaborate and seek feedback.

Only registered users may view, create or edit a page/article on these sites. If you create or edit any page, you are publishing a document within the wiki environment. Your submissions (new or edited content) are automatically tagged with your username and chronological information.

Acknowledgement/Acceptance of Terms

In order to obtain an account on one or more of these wikis (for non-EPA users), participants must agree to the following:

I acknowledge that I have read and agree to the terms and conditions of participation hosted on the wiki(s) to which I have been given access. In addition, I understand how any information published on these sites may or may not be used.